FEW Spirits is a grain to glass product:
Being grain to glass means we do everything on site from grinding our grain to bottling our spirits, hence “grain to glass”. We feel that being in control of every step is important so everyone knows exactly what is going into our alcohol. Our first process will always begin with getting our grain of course

Mash Bills:

Mash refers to all the grains wheat, corn, barley, and rye that form the very basis of bourbon. The mix of grains is called the mash bill. and each distiller has its own signature recipe. The wheat allows the sweetness of the corn to come through. It also magnifies the sugars from the barrel, so you get a sweeter and more mellow bourbon.
